mander, but acknowledged the chain-of-command over the Pueblo goes at least as high as the Commander-in-Chief, Pacific, Adm. U.S. Grant Sharp.

As over-all Pacific commander, Sharp would have authority to order Air Force units into action to aid the intelligence-gathering ship.

The Pentagon officials refused to discuss any standing orders Bucher had with him but did disclose the skipper is allowed some discretion in how to meet situations.

On Tuesday, the Pentagon said Bucher did not ask for special instructions when he was confronted by the North Korean threat.

As things stand, there still is no explanation as to why the Pueblo's skipper waited until he was being boarded to appeal for help.

Navy sources suggested Bucher might not have been alarmed by the first contact because, during more than 10 days in international waters off North Korea, his ship had been approached often by Red patrol boats without being threatened.

RESEARCH IN

some areas is near a standstill. Graduate admissions for next September probably will be cut. Some schools are hunting more intensively for private money.

Shirley A. Johnson Jr., director of research at the University of Denver, said, "If we feel a cut here we'll just have to decrease our activities." His school did $3.27 million in Defense Department business last year and also has seven space agency contracts.

"We're hurting in the graduate education area," said James J. Brophy, academic vice president at Illinois Institute of Technology, where government research finances one-third of the entire academic program.

Defense officials expect private schools with little or no endowment—Denver and IIT, for example—to be hurt more than state universities such as Michigan and California, or heavily endowed private schools like Stanford and Harvard.

The Defense Department talked with officials at 33 schools to measure the impact. The private memo reported:

"The cuts have just not hit them yet but are only beginning to be felt."

"Schools realize it is going to get worse, will probably peak next spring (when contract decisions will be made)."

"Because impacts haven't hit yet, no firm plan of how to deal with them has evolved at any institution interviewed."

"There is general agreement on priorities: Post-doctoral fellowships in-take in school year 1968 will be reduced . . . no investment will be made in major pieces of equipment and technicians will be let go . . . the number of graduate students admitted will be down this year . . . some faculty members' summer salaries will not be covered as in the past by grants and contracts . . . the more affluent universities who believe that the trend will change in '69 will commit some of their own private resources to tide them over during this period."

The government spent about $1.6 billion for college and university research in 1967. Overall research and development obligations totaled $17.5 billion—but they're being cut about $1 billion in the 1968 budget year.

Defense Department research support to schools is dropping from $284 million in 1967 to about $225 million this year.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration cut its sustaining university program from $30 million to $10 million, and lopped about $9 million from the $87 million in program research that went to universities in 1967.

In addition to the research cutback, colleges and universities also face a $208 million deferral in spending for new campus construction by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Defense Department is either slowing the effort or shortening the contracts for projects it would continue full tilt if it had the money.

Projects affected by the NASA cutback won't be abandoned—they have phaseout money appropriated in earlier years.

Both agencies hope President Johnson's fiscal 1969 budget will provide money to reaccelerate the programs and that Congress will abstain from budget slicing.

Some congressmen have frequently criticized research programs, leveling charges of poor administration, duplication, concentration of dollars at a few schools and waste on studies they regard as unneeded.

The National Institutes of Health, which poured $600 million into colleges and universities in 1967, is holding at that level for 1968. But with rising costs it expects to get about seven per cent less research per dollar.

The Bureau of the Budget, acknowledging it knows little about what is happening on campus, is setting out to trace research dollars in the hope of learning what effect their presence—or absence—is having.

Concern has been voiced periodically about what might happen when federal research money declined but until now the discussion has been mostly theoretical.

NASA, which gave 750 predoctoral three-year fellowships in 1967, is giving 75 this year. The National Science Foundation is cutting its training fellowships from 1,200 to 700. National Defense Education Act fellowships are being halved to 3,000.

The military draft is another factor complicating the graduate admissions picture. Schools expect the axing of graduate study draft deferments by Congress last year to cut the pool for 1968 graduate admissions by from 10 to 25 per cent.

Laos Post Overrun by Viet Cong

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) —

North Vietnamese troops have captured a Laotian outpost near the Vietnamese border, forcing the garrison to flee into South Vietnam, Lao military sources said today.

The sources said three to four battalions of North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao troops attacked the outpost of Ban Houei Sane in southern Laos Wednesday.

The outpost, manned by about 300 Laotian troops, is situated about 2.5 miles from the South Vietnamese border.

Contact with the Laotian battalion was lost today Lao military officers said.

The Communist force used mortars and artillery to soften up the Lao base before attacking with machineguns and infantry.

Lao military officers said the attack took the battalion commander by surprise because it was far bigger than the usual encounters between Lao and Communist troops.

Sources in Vientiane said the Ban Houei Sane outpost was situated near the Ho Chi Minh trail.

Its function was to harass North Vietnamese forces moving down the trail and to provide information for U.S. bombing strikes against the trail.

The Laotian military sources said the last reports they had of the whereabouts of the Laotian battalion was that it was making for the South Vietnamese border and a U.S. Special Forces camp just across it.

Kirby Waits on Supreme Court Move

LITTLE ROCK (AP) —

Circuit Judge William J. Kirby is awaiting a Supreme Court decision on the contempt citation against former State Police Director Lynn A. Davis before he takes further action on eight remaining cases stemming from Sept. 9 gambling raids.

Deputy Prosecutor Clay Robinson questioned the connection between the cases and the contempt citation.

"I think it's all in connection with this unknown informant," Kirby said.

Kirby ordered Davis to jail Dec. 5 when Davis refused to identify a confidential informant who Davis said had information about gambling.

Kirby said he would hear motions in the eight cases March 20. Twelve persons originally were charged as a result of the State Police raids.

10 Jailed in Murder of Rightist

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) —

Ten men were jailed Wednesday night on murder and arson charges stemming from the 1966 firebomb killing of a Negro civil rights leader.

They included a Laurel civic leader recently honored by his hometown Jaycees, a state Ku Klux Klan chieftain and a lawyer who showed up to represent clients arrested earlier, then was jailed himself.

In the state indictments, issued secretly by the Forrest County grand jury, five men were charged with murder and arson and five others were charged with arson. Arraignment is scheduled today.

The white men were accused of the Jan. 10, 1966, attack with firebombs, tear gas and bullets on the home of Vernon F. Dahmer near Hattiesburg shortly before dawn.

Despite the flames, Dahmer shot back at his attackers, creating confusion that allowed his wife, daughter and two sons to escape. Dahmer died in a hospital of burns. He had been a leader in a Negro voter registration drive.

The five charged with arson included Sam H. Bowers Jr., 43, of Laurel, identified repeatedly as Imperial Wizard of the militant White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Bowers was free on bond in a conviction on a federal civil rights conspiracy charge in the 1964 murder of three civil rights workers near Philadelphia, Miss. No state charges were filed in that case.

Those charged with both murder and arson in the Dahmer slaying included Charles C. Wilson, given the Laurel Jaycees' Distinguished Service Award last Monday. A past president of the Laurel Jaycees, he has been active in civic, Boy Scout and Parent-Teacher Association activities.

Nine men, all from the Laurel or Ellisville area, had been jailed when Travis Buckley, 33, a Bay Springs, Miss., lawyer showed up to represent Bowers and others. He was shown an indictment charging him with arson, then jailed with the others.

HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Extension Homemakers met, Wednesday, Jan. 17. Mrs. Campbell served as hostess for the meeting. Mrs. Vernie Goynes, presiding, opened the meeting with the Thought of the month. Mrs. E. O. Bright led the group in singing "In the Garden". Mrs. Campbell used the 23rd Psalm in her devotion followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison.

A quiz, entitled "Take a Look at Family Life" given by Mrs. Goynes was the eye-opener. Mrs. Frank Strather gave the lesson, "How to Tidy up Your Family Life", after which there was a discussion. Mrs. F. Strather gave a report on Human Relations and Mrs. Mamie Saunders gave one on Health. Program leaders for the coming year were assigned.

The meeting was closed by the repeating of the Woman's Creed. After the meeting there were refreshments and games. Mrs. E. O. Bright led the group in playing games. The hostess served cookies, hot coco and coffee to ten members and three guests. Mrs. George Langston, Little Miss Connie Smith, and Dennis Smith.

SHOWER SPRINGS HD CLUB MEETS

Mrs. Clifton East, who entertained the Shower Springs Extension Homemakers Club on Thursday, Jan. 18, had the opening devotional message. Mrs. Homer Pointexter led the group in singing "Just a Closer Walk With Thee."

After Mrs. Wilton Mullins had given the eye opener, Mrs. East taught the lesson, "Family Communication." Mrs. Darrell Dillon performed the duties of secretary, and the roll was answered by 9 members telling "The Way My Family Discusses Problems."

Mrs. Pointexter, vice-president, read a poem, "Life's Mirror," and Mrs. East made a health report on TB. Mrs. Bill Dillon won the door prize. Members drew new Secret Pal names, and the meeting was concluded by all repeating the Woman's Creed.

Cake and punch were served for refreshments. The February meeting will be with Mrs. Grady Dillard.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB MEETS

At the Cosmopolitan Club Tuesday night, Jan. 23, Mrs. P. L. Perkins reviewed 4 tales from "The Short Stories" written by several native authors. The book, sent to Mrs. Perkins by Mary Margaret Dameron Mann, a former pupil of hers and the granddaughter of Mrs. Carl Smith, is the first English translation of Thailand short stories. It proved to be interesting, entertaining, and most unusual.

Spring flowers decorated the home of Mrs. Royce Smith, where the meeting was held. Club President, Mrs. R. L. Broach, conducted a few brief matters of business.

Mrs. Smith and her co-hostess, Mrs. L. T. Lawrence, served a salad plate and coffee to 16.

LILAC GARDEN CLUB MEETS

The Lilac Garden Club met Wednesday, Jan. 24 in the home of Mrs. W. R. Burks with Mrs. Pearl Owens and Mrs. Ari Ward co-hostesses. Pink roses were on the coffee table, and the dining room table was centered with a candle arrangement.

County Agent Calvin Caldwell was a special guest, and he brought helpful tips on "Preparing Gardens for Spring," as the program. The Club President, Mrs. B. W. Edwards, had charge of the business portion of the meeting.

During the refreshment hour, the hostesses served red and white, heart-shaped cakes and coffee to 10.

SWEET HOME HD CLUB MEETS

The Sweet Home Extension Homemakers Club met Friday, Jan. 19 at the Club House with Mrs. Bill Bright, vice-president, presiding. Song leader, Mrs. J. E. Ward, led the group in singing "Home on the Range" to get the meeting started.

The Eye-opener was given by Mrs. Bill Bright, who also read 1st Peter for the devotion followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison by the group. The roll was answered with "The Way My Family Discusses Problems." Everyone discussed their ideas and opinions about health after the roll call. New books were filled out and secret pals selected.

The meeting was adjourned until their February meeting in the Club House.

After the meeting, the hostesses, Mrs. Yaberry and Mrs. Bright served refreshments to ten members.

POPULARITY IS AN EYE PATCH

Dear Helen: I have a "lazy" eye and my doctor says I have to wear a patch over the good one, to make the lazy one work harder. I hate wearing a patch. Isn't there some other way? - WORRIED

Get with it, chum: eye patches are "in." Put a hot design or a wild "eye" on yours, and I'll bet all the kids will be copying you. Besides, what's a little discomfort, if it helps your vision?

Note to teens who go for "fad patches": wear them only occasionally and not always over the same eye. If you don't need an eye shield, constant use of one—even with a see-through hole—can cause complications. -H.

Dear Helen:

I guess I'm dumber than anybody, but I can't help feeling this way. Please don't laugh.

I baby-sit for a couple I really like a whole bunch. They've invited me to spend Easter week with them and their two little children at the mountains. It will be fun, but here's my problem. Their magazine rack is filled with men's magazines that have all kinds of sexy pictures (excuse the expression). When they come home at night, they kiss and hug each other right in front of me. Not like a movie fade-out or anything, just sorta friendly, but it's embarrassing all the same.

I know this is natural for married people and love is beautiful, but then I think of the girly magazines. So when I'm living with them for a whole week, I'm afraid I'll think about this more and more, and start to brood about those jokes and pictures I don't quite understand. Am I - JUST PLAIN DUMB?

Dear JPD:

Of course you aren't dumb—neither are you unusual. Most young teens are both repelled and fascinated by sex; when they first relate it to friends the "like a whole bunch" they often brood a bit... This especially if they're unable to discuss life, love and the pursuit of girly magazines with their parents.

I think your Easter week will help you see that married love really is beautiful. Stop worrying about a normal reaction. You'll be reacting casual to these wholehearted young-marrieds within a day. -H.

Dear Helen:

Please advise me: what to do in a situation where another girl is having a baby from my boyfriend who says—and I believe him—that he is deeply in love with me. I have a feeling there's going to be some confusion about this in the future. - ABOUT TO GO NUTS

Dear ATGN:

I have a feeling you're so-o-o right! The boy should settle his affair with the first girl before making promises to the second. And the second girl, if she is smart, will take those promises with a pound of salt. -H.

Dear Helen:

I emphatically agree with "RICK" and his "going collective." But my boyfriend doesn't. I told him I thought it was a good idea to date around, but stay "special" with each other. He said if I picked a second-choice boy, he'd never speak to me again. I like him, but I want to meet new fellas. How can I change his mind? - W.B.

Dear W:

It's almost impossible to turn a possessive boy "collective," so maybe you'd better just turn him off. When a girl says she wants to meet new fellas, she isn't ready for the one-and-only type. In fact, she may be tired of him already.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of The Hope Star.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - And now a final adventure for Batman: He is going off to that Bathalla in the sky.

That's the way producer William Dozier describes the end of the "Batman" series on ABC. This week the word was handed down that the show will not be renewed for a fourth year.

"Well, we had a good three-year run," Dozier philosophized. "That's not bad for what was essentially a novelty show. You've got to be realistic about such series—they can't last too long. In fact, I was surprised that it went a third season."

When "Batman" arrived on the television scene in 1965, it was a rip-roaring sensation. Critics were confused as to whether to denounce it as child's play or praise it as camp. Adults were amused by the straight-faced heroics and the stylistic manner of the series, as evidenced in the comic strip "zaps" and "pows" that appeared on the screen during fightings.

There was never any question of how the youngsters felt about "Batman"; they loved it. The youthful audience remained loyal into the third season, but the adults defected, and that can be fatal for a television series. It is still the adults who buy the sponsors' products, and if they aren't watching, they won't buy.

"In the last rating, the show was still leading in its time period," Dozier observed. "But the adults had wearied of the series, and the audience had become more and more juvenile. If I were running the network, I would have taken 'Batman' off, too. The kids are just as happy to watch the old shows; they don't care if it's a repeat. So why go on spending $87,000 for new ones?"

The quality of "Batman" was maintained to the end, coming up as such guests as Zsa Zsa Gabor, Howard Duff and Ida Lupino. The new shows will run out at the end of March, then repeats will play on the network, probably through the summer.

"Then we'll go into syndication, and I expect 'Batman' will go on playing forever," said the producer. "We'll have 120 negatives to sell, and there will be a whole new generation of kids coming along who have never seen the show."

NEW YORK (AP) - Lee Remick made her heralded television debut in ABC's "Laura" Wednesday night. It was not, alas, a particularly memorable two hours.

Miss Bouvier Jacqueline Kennedy's sister and in private life Princess Ritzwill—played the title role, a girl in the center of a group of terribly civilized, unpleasant, lying characters.

Her lack of professional acting experience was quite evident throughout since the character of Laura remained a sort of blur from beginning to end—one never felt much about the character, pro or con.

The adaptation from the old hit movie was a slow-moving drama in which the five principals seemed to roam constantly around beautifully furnished rooms, pouring and sipping drinks, and talking, talking, talking. All except Laura, who actually had few lines, which Miss Bouvier delivered in the tentative, almost cautious manner of the star of a high school play.

She was not, however, the only one who had trouble in the framework of an implausible murder story. George Sanders was stuck in the role of a middle-aged loner whose protégé she had been. Farley Granger was the amoral young gigolo to whom Laura was attracted while he was having an affair with her aunt, Ariane Francis, as the aunt, was not treated kindly by the cameras but did succeed in making her unpleasant character seem faintly human. Robert Stack played the detective in the wooden, expressionless style he first adopted for "The Unouchables."

As soon as we learned at midpoint that the murdered girl was not Laura, the show settled down to permitting the main characters to tell lies. The revelation of the murderer at the end of a very long two hours seemed to come as an anticlimax.

Miss Bouvier's family connections and her recent decision to become a professional performer caused unusual interest in her initial television appearance. It is unfortunate that she took the plunge in a starring role, since it takes time and experience to convert even a devoted amateur into a professional.

It is even more unfortunate that she and her fellow performers—had such awkward material with which to work. Although the program, taped in England, was handsomely mounted, the camera work was uneven, and the depth of color varied unpredictably from very light to very dark tones, even changing abruptly in the middle of scenes.

"Laura" was not any great shakes as a suspense tale. Miss Bouvier did not emerge as a latter day Sarah Bernhardt. But it was still interesting to watch her debut. And "Laura" was a great fashion show. Miss Bouvier's costumes, from negligees to street clothes, were high fashion.

New 'Quake Reported in Sicily

PALESTINE, Sicily (AP) — A strong new earthquake jolted western Sicily today, burying rescue workers still digging for bodies from the island's worst quake disaster in 50 years. The tremor killed at least four persons and injured about 50, police reported.

The epicenter of the new tremors was in the same hilly, poverty-stricken countryside where hundreds were killed Jan. 15.

It toppled scores of walls and buildings in the same dozen towns badly hit by the first quake and in some communities which previously suffered little or no damage.

Police in Trapani said they received reports that a police sergeant and two firemen were crushed to death under a falling wall in Gibellina, a town that had been totally destroyed 10 days ago.

Another death was reported at Partanna, which was also badly hit earlier.

The island's rescue forces returned immediately to a disaster footing. More soldiers were rushed to the stricken area from Trapani.

Helicopters took to the air with plasma and medicine. Ambulances raced out of Trapani and sped off along the winding, cracked country roads.

Police evacuated all populated centers that had been left standing after the first disaster. Even the thousands of refugees who were being lodged in outdoor tents fled.

In the larger cities of Palermo, Trapani and Agrigento, on the edge of the disaster zone, the new tremor panicked tens of thousands. They rushed out of houses and offices and made off in cars that clogged country roads.

The new shock hit the already devastated area in mid-morning a force of more than eight on the 10-point Mercalli scale. Another tremor followed soon after.

Buildings and walls that were badly damaged in the earlier quake shook and collapsed, catching some rescue workers underneath.

Until today, the workers had uncovered 224 bodies in the various towns. They kept digging, seeking 150 or so bodies still believed under the debris.

In recent days officials have convinced some 12,000 survivors of the Jan. 15 disaster to move into buildings set aside for them in towns on the fringe of the stricken zone. But about the same number of refugees steadfastly refused to leave tents in the countryside for fear of new tremors that might kill them if they were in buildings.

The tremor shook the western part of the island as Sicilians were beginning to believe that the shocks that had tormented them for 10 days had come to an end.

Miami Blast Blamed on Cubans

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Plastic explosive tucked through the mail slots of three businesses exploded early today within 22 minutes, police said, shattering the offices of two companies that ship packages to Cuba and damaging a garage.

Police Sgt. Russ Leasburg was injured slightly while investigating the first blast when a second explosive detonated at the same spot, Lt. James H. Knight said. Knight said the timing of the second blast apparently was accidental.

At the hardest-hit office, All Travel Agency on Coral Way, owner J. Asigarrara said he ships food and clothing packages to Cuba on a commercial basis. He blamed the bombing on a group that calls itself "Cuban Power."

Today In Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Medal of Honor has been awarded posthumously to a U.S. pilot who covered the withdrawal of a beleaguered South Vietnamese battalion by firing a rifle at the enemy from his circling light plane.

The medal was accepted for Air Force Capt. Hillard A. Wilbanks Wednesday by his widow, Mrs. Rosemary Wilbanks, of Glen Allen, Miss.

Secretary of the Air Force Harold Brown made the presentation in a Pentagon ceremony.

During the action for which he was cited Wilbanks was flying a light, unarmed reconnaissance plane. He made many passes over the enemy, allowing the Ranger battalion to withdraw, but he was finally mortally wounded and his bullet-riddled plane crashed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American press, says Secretary of State Dean Rusk, is doing a complete and generally objective job of reporting the Vietnam war.

Press coverage of the war, Rusk said in answering a question addressed to him at a Senate Youth Forum Tuesday, "varies a good deal from day to day and from reporter to reporter. But we have an extraordinarily able and effective press corps in this country—both out there and back here."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien urges Americans to use the new six-cent flag stamp as a patriotic gesture, declaring "the millions who use it will be literally flying the flag."

O'Brien inaugurated use of the stamp Wednesday with praise for those who are fighting "at the outposts of freedom" in Vietnam.

The stamp, designed by artist Steven Dohanos, portrays the Stars and Stripes flying over the White House with the Washington monument and Jefferson Memorial in the distance.

The new stamp goes on sale today, augmenting the Franklin D. Roosevelt issue in meeting the demand caused by the recently increased first class postal rate.

Pickets Harass First Lady

WASHINGTON (AP) — "End the war, Lady Bird," a young girl screamed as Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson stepped from a limousine Wednesday night and entered the Women's National Democratic Club.

Mrs. Johnson, looking straight ahead, ignored the dozen shouting and sign-waving demonstrators, even when one of them jammed a placard in front of her face.

She maintained silence also when she emerged from the club's party a half-hour later to again face the youthful pickets.

On both occasions the pickets shouted and waved signs bearing slogans ranging from "We support Eartha Kitt" to "No Taxes for the War Machine."

The Eartha Kitt signs referred to an incident at a White House luncheon last week when Miss Kitt, a singer, protested about the Vietnam war to Mrs. Johnson.

Mrs. Johnson and many other Democratic officials, legislators, politicians and their wives attended the club's housewarming reception which followed its recent expansion and renovation.

'Info' Foes Are Joined by Purcell

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell revealed Wednesday that he and two Democratic state representatives advised the chairman of the state Democratic party in December that the controversial television program "Info '68" should be dropped.

"We were concerned that the program did not represent the best interests of the Democratic party of Arkansas," Purcell said.

He said subsequent telecasts had not changed his mind.

The attorney general said the party must "speak in positive terms and not negative terms."

"The party must open its ear to the concerns of its people," he said. "They must have the right to dissent and the right to be heard and should not be criticized for expressing this dissent."

The program and the chairman of the state party, Leon B. Catlett, who sponsors "Info '68" along with others, have been under fire from a chorus of Democrats.

The program has been critical of the administration of Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, primarily for filling state jobs with out-of-staters.

Purcell said this charge lost its effect because the program moderator, Mrs. Elizabeth Westmoreland, moved to Arkansas from Minnesota only six months before the program went on the air.

The attorney general said he believed there were qualified persons in Arkansas to fill state jobs, but he said he did not believe the Democrats benefited by repeated "Info '68" criticism of the Republicans on the subject.

Members of the Young Democrats Club in Lawrence County are among the latest to join the criticism of the program, sending Catlett a letter of complaint.

Catlett made public a letter in which he thanked Leroy Blankenship, of Walnut Ridge, who wrote the VD letter, and cautioned him to guard against being influenced by a Republican member of his family, his brother Bill, who Catlett said was "a paid field representative of the Republican governor" for two years.

Purcell said Leroy Blankenship was "a very dedicated Democrat" of the type the party should be recruiting. He said Blankenship had worked untiringly in his campaign for attorney general in 1966.

"He has the interests of the Democratic party at heart," Purcell said. "The party needs Leroy Blankenship and others like him. They should express the voice of dissent in matters that concern them."

Johnson Pleads for Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, appealing anew to Congress for passage of his 1967 civil rights proposals, said today action should not be delayed simply because "the air is filled with the voices of extremists on both sides."

In his second special message in as many days, Johnson pointedly mentioned the lawless racial violence of last summer. But he said that although lawlessness must be punished, "the criminal conduct of some must not weaken our resolve to deal with the real grievances of all those who suffer discrimination."

Much of the lengthy message redited what Johnson described as marked civil rights progress in recent years. Yet he said there is urgent need for the legislation that he first sought last year.

He renewed his appeal for the legislation:

— To strengthen federal criminal laws prohibiting violence against those who exercise their civil rights.

— To empower the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to issue cease and desist orders against any employer or union practicing discrimination.

— To prohibit discrimination

Thursday, January 25, 1968

in the sale or rental of all housing in the country.

— To assure that federal and state juries are selected without discrimination.

Terminating civil rights "the most difficult domestic issue we have ever faced," Johnson said a great majority of Americans accept the creed of equality but "some continue to resist every constructive step to its achievement."

He said the extremists on one side "use our very successes as an excuse to stop in our tracks" while those on the other "catalogue only our failures, declare that our society is bankrupt, and promote violence and force as an alternative to orderly change."

He expressed the view that these extremes represent "forms of escapism by a small minority of our people."

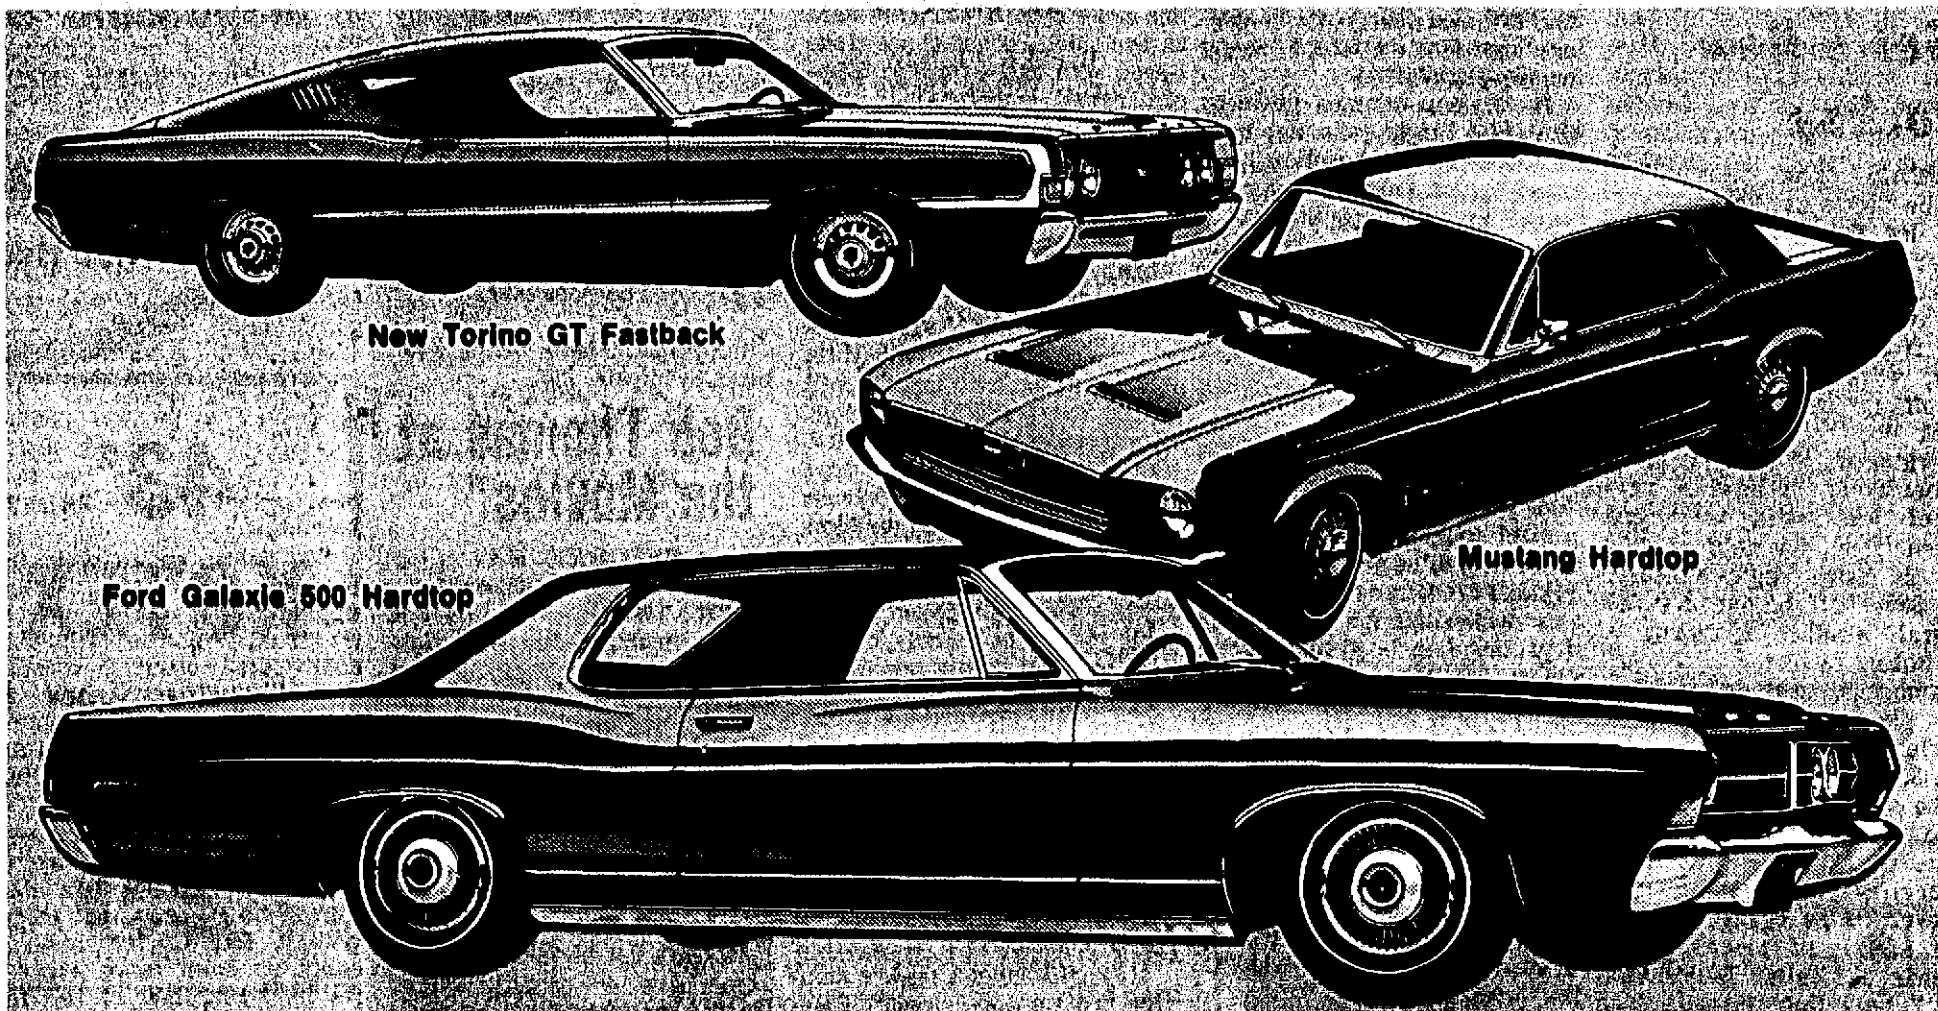

In discussing the 1967 riots, Johnson said the prime victims were "the people of the ghettos."

"No people need or want protection — the effective, nondiscriminatory exercise of the police power — more than the law-abiding majority of slum dwellers," he said. "Like better schools, housing and job opportunities, improved police protection is necessary for better conditions of life in the central city today. It is a vital part of our agenda for urban America."

The open housing proposal is the most controversial item in the Johnson civil rights package.

Long Island Heads Small College List

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Undefeated Long Island University moved into first place in The Associated Press' small-college basketball poll today, shading twice-beaten Evansville by one point in the voting by a national panel of 14 sports writers and broadcasters.

The Blackbirds, No. 1 for the first time this season, hurdled both Evansville and Kentucky Wesleyan in taking over the top position from the Purple Aces. The Panthers from Owensboro, Ky., dropped to third.

LIU collected six votes for first place and 110 points in the latest poll based on games through last Saturday. Evansville had three votes for the No. 1 spot and 109 points, the latter on a basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, 9 for second, down to 1 for 10th.

Kentucky Wesleyan had 98 points. Southwest Louisiana is fourth followed in order by Southwest Missouri State, Indiana State, Trinity, Tex., Guilford, Pan American and Lincoln, Mo.

In last week's games, LIU won its 12th straight by downing Philadelphia Textile 76-65. Evansville, 11-2, was beaten by Ball State 91-82 after defeating Valparaiso, 97-74. Kentucky Wesleyan, 9-3, trounced Kentucky State 125-80.

Southwestern Louisiana, idle last week, climbed two positions and replaced Indiana State in the No. 4 slot. Indiana State slipped to sixth after losing to Butler, a major team, 86-85.

Southwest Missouri State, also not scheduled last week held fifth place.

There were no changes in the No. 7 through No. 10 rankings. Trinity, Tex., beat Houston Baptist 93-53 for an 11-4 mark while Pan American, 10-3, whipped Tennessee, Tech, 75-71.

Guilford, 11-1, and Lincoln, Mo., 14-2, did not play.

The Top Ten with first-place votes in parentheses and total points:

1. Long Is. Univ. (6) 110
2. Evansville (3) 109
3. Kentucky Wesleyan 98
4. SW Louisiana (1) 72
5. SW Mo. St. (1) 63
6. Indiana State 62
7. Trinity, Tex. 43
8. Guilford (1) 37
9. Pan American 24
10. Lincoln, Mo. 23

Damascus to Get a New Jockey

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Who will be the lucky jockey to take over for the injured Bill Shoemaker and ride Damascus?

That was the question as word was awaited today from Damascus' front office, Thomas Bancroft, whose wife, Edith W., is the official owner, and trainer Frank Whiteley, who will decide on a rider.

Shoemaker, meanwhile, reportedly was resting well with a broken right leg injured in a spill at Santa Anita Tuesday. The shoe will be out of action several months, according to Dr. Robert Kerlan.

Damascus' next major objective is the $100,000-added Charles H. Strub Stakes here Feb. 3.

The colt's trainer has not indicated when a decision will be made.

Racetrackers on the backside, however, were ready to nominate such good riders on the grounds as Walter Blum, Manuel Ycaza, Don Pierce, John

Hope Teams to Camden Friday Night

By RALPH ROUNTON

Star Sports Writer
Thank goodness that everything is cleared up, and the Lady Cats will not be playing Bradley again. We can leave that behind us.

More important things on the HHS sport scene to talk about now, most notably being the Bobcats' jump into divisional competition Friday night. The Cats will journey along with the Bobkittens to Camden for two games with the Lincoln High Wildcats, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

It will be a must game for the Bobcats, who are now 2-2 in 4-AA and can't afford many more losses this year. Furthermore, conference championships are won and lost on the road, and this is a crucial away game on Hope's schedule.

A win would give the Bobcats a 3-2 boost into Saturday night's match with Arkadelphia at Jones Field House, and the Cats should be stronger than Arkadelphia at this point. Therefore, this weekend's games will be near musts for Hope to win, in order to stay in contention in 4-AA's Western Division.

The remaining three teams at Hope High School will travel to Spring Hill tomorrow evening for confrontation. For the Junior Girls it will likely mean the season's final game, if no more can be slated. The Kitty Cats are 3-6 on the year, with one of their wins coming over Spring Hill 30-29 on a last-second basket by Dee Singleton.

After the Junior girls finish the opener, the world-beating Hope Lady Cats will swarm over the court for their final bout with the Spring Hill Senior Girls for the 67-68 season. Back in December the Lady Cats digested SH 48-11 at Jones Field House, and that Hope team has greatly advanced since that time. Spring Hill is having an off year, and should provide very little resistance in the Lady Cats' drive for Victory Number 19.

The evening's action will be wrapped up with a battle which has all of the characteristics of a crowd-pleaser. In the opponents' first meeting, the Hope "B" Lizards eked out a 59-58 overtime decision over the Spring Hill Bears in Hope. Now the teams meet at the peak of their schedules, and it should be a hot one.

Action at Spring Hill will start at 6:00 p.m. KXAR will broadcast the Arkadelphia games from Jones Field House on Saturday night.

Speculate Who Will Be Draft No. 1

By LEW FERGUSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Who will have the distinction of being the No. 1 draft choice in professional football's 1968 college player draft next Tuesday?

Barring an unforeseen 11th-hour trade of their bonus selection, the Minnesota Vikings will make that pick shortly after 10 a.m. EST, Tuesday. And the Vikings aren't saying who they may tab.

It could be Kevin Hardy, Notre Dame's giant defensive tackle, or linebacker Fred Carr of Texas Western, or quarterback Gary Began of UCLA, or offensive tackle Ron Yary of Southern Cal.

"We've narrowed the field down to four or five," is all that Vikings' General Manager Jim Finks would say Wednesday. "Now we're in the process of making contact with these prospective draftees."

"We're checking things like recent injuries, military status, and so forth."

"We still haven't made a decision and we may not until Tuesday morning. And we won't announce it even if we have made the decision before that."

It still is possible, although apparently not probable that the Vikings will trade the bonus selection they received last year from the New York Giants as part of the Fran Tarkenton trade. Minnesota could have exercised the bonus last year, but delayed its use until this year.

The Giants had received the bonus as a condition in the merger of the National and American football leagues.

Mentioned as quarterbacks who might be involved in a trade with the Vikings are Bill Munson of the Los Angeles Rams and John Brodie and George Mira of the San Francisco 49ers.

Once-Beaten UCLA Heads Into Garden

By MIKE RECHT

Associated Press Sports Writer

As if Holy Cross didn't have enough trouble with a game against UCLA Friday night, now the Crusaders have heaped upon themselves added pressure.

"They'll (the Bruins) come into Madison Square Garden quite loose now that they've lost," Holy Cross Coach Jack Donohue said earlier this week.

"And if we win Wednesday night against Colgate, we'll be on a two-game winning streak. That can hurt us with pressure," he quipped.

For what it's worth, the pressure is there now after the Crusaders breezed by Colgate 98-81 Wednesday night for only their seventh victory in 12 games.

The pressure is also building for Louisiana State, which stomped Clemson 104-81 for its 10th victory against two losses, despite a meager 33 points by Mervyn Maravich. The triumph was the third straight for the Tiggers, who must face nationally ranked Southeastern Conference foes Kentucky twice and Tennessee and Vanderbilt once each in their next four games.

In other games on a light college basketball night, West Virginia trimmed Penn State 77-63; Temple nudged Rider 75-73 and Penn upset LaSalle 57-45 in a Philadelphia doubleheader; Western Michigan hammered Miami of Ohio 91-71, and Marshall tumbled Ohio U. 82-73.

Also S Peters swamped Siena 98-72, TCU routed visiting Austin 117-78, host DePaul belted Illinois Wesleyan 93-77, and Evansville whipped Southern Illinois 52-45 at home.

Donohue, who coached UCLA's Lew Alcindor in high school, will be facing the All-American in college for the first time and few people give him and his Crusaders much chance.

"Unless we play real well Wednesday night," he said, retaining his sense of humor, "they may be favored."

Holy Cross was impressive against visiting Colgate, particularly 6-foot-4 Keith Hockstein, who scored 26 points and grabbed 10 rebounds. Naceo Giles added 19.

LSU was equally impressive, although its home court fans left unhappy because Maravich, the nation's leading scorer, fouled out after only 7 1/2 minutes of the second half. His point total was 12 below his season average.

When he fouled out, the capacity crowd howled and sent paper wads and cups raining onto the court. But his loss didn't affect his teammates who turned a 51-42 halftime lead into a rout.

Ron Williams scored 20 points and added eight assists as West Virginia, playing at home, won its fourth straight.

KNOW THYSELF

By RAY BLUTH

President, PBA

Socrates once advised: "Know Thyself." Though he never tried to knock down 10 pins, he did have the right idea about improving your bowling.

The prime requisite in hiking your score is a realistic appraisal of your game. All the great professional bowlers continuously study their forms — their approach, their release, their follow-through — and other aspects, mental and physical, to add points to their scores.

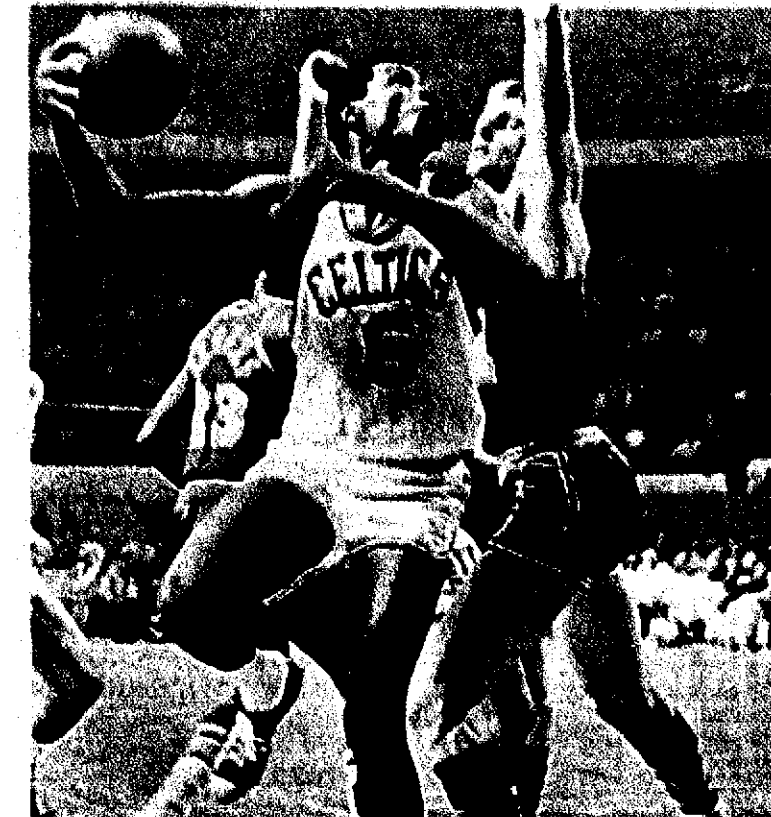

Dick Weber used to throw a tremendous hook. However, he experimented with a more direct ball, and has stayed with it. Don Carter found he could be even more successful by being low at the foul line, to insure a better release position.

During the 1955-56 season, I felt I had reached a static average. I was around 200. But I wasn't hitting the pocket with consistency. That's when I developed my unique stance of holding the ball high and to the right before starting. It was awkward at first, but my average jumped to 210. That season Weber and I won the national doubles championship.

The point is: Everyone must find what suits him best. That's done by trial and error. Knowing your game is one of the thin threads between being a good local bowler and a top pro.

Alcindor's Eye Still Ailing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lew Alcindor's injured left eye is not expected to keep him from two weekend UCLA basketball games in New York City.

UCLA quoted the 7-foot-1 All-American's doctor Wednesday as saying Alcindor "is making improvement but still has minimal double vision."

Alcindor was hurt Jan. 12 in a game against California. The Bruins play Holy Cross Friday and Boston College Saturday.

UCLA's 6-foot-6 forward Edgar Lacey remained in Los Angeles after failing to show up for practice Monday and Tuesday.

Lacey refused Wednesday to confirm or deny reports that he'll quit the squad. Coach John Wooden said Lacey has not been dismissed.

Lacey's father, Edgar Sr., reported that his son was hurt by a statement Wooden made to sports writers Monday. Wooden said in answer to a question that he took Lacey out of Saturday's game with Houston for good because Lacey had been ineffective and didn't seem to want to go back in.

Lacey left the game with 11 minutes left in the first half. With Lacey guarding him, Houston's Elvin Hayes had scored 10 points. Hayes later scored another 29 and Houston won the game 71-69, snapping UCLA's 47-game winning streak.

The Yerger High School Tigers were defeated 89-68 by the Columbus Owls Wednesday night. The Tigers played a tremendous game.

The first half was played with great spirit and scoring ability. At half time the score was 27-34. The third quarter was not so good for the Tigers. The Owls led 20 points with two minutes left in the third quarter.

The Tigers pulled up by 10 points. Spencer Brown 4 points, Johnny Smith 4, and Ira Isley 2. Now the Owls led by a total of 20 points. With a free shot by the Owls making the final score 68-89.

The junior boys, leading the two-game set for the night, lost to the Columbus Owls.

Arnold Is Target of L.A. Meet

By BOB MYERS

Associated Press Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The 42nd annual Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament got under way today with Arnold Palmer, the defending champion, the main target of his brother professionals.

The scene, transplanted from nearby Los Angeles, was Brookside Park, a revamped course located adjacent to Pasadena's famed Rose Bowl. For this tournament, Brookside measures 7,021 yards, with par 36-35-71.

Palmer, who first won the Los Angeles Open in 1963, made it two in a row a year ago with a 72-hole score of 269. The site was the par-71 Rancho Municipal layout in West Los Angeles.

Whether Brookside will be easier or tougher remains to be seen during the four rounds of golf coming up. But the pros didn't exactly slaughter things in Wednesday's pro-am.

Only 16 pros managed to break par in their individual efforts, while Palmer had a 73 and Billy Casper a 72.

Leading the way with three-under par 68s were Mason Rudolph, Charles Coody, Hovie Johnson and Dave Hill.

Al Geiberger, Dave Marr, Charley Sifford and Elvete Spray made the tour in 30-degree weather in 69, while the 77 group included Frank Beard, Gay Brewer, Bob Cooley, Tommy Aaron, George Knudson and Bruce Crampton.

Half of the 14 Sullivan Award nominees were women.

Others receiving votes included Charlotte Cooke, Washington, D.C., track; Lt. Micki King, Ann Arbor, Mich., diving; Larry Kristoff, Carbondale, Ill., wrestling; Margo Ann McGrath, San Francisco, synchronized swimming; Lindy Matheny, Tuscola, Ill., gymnastics; Joe Puleo, York, Pa., weight-lifting; Mark Spitz, Sacramento, Calif., swimming; James Wallington, Fort Bragg, N.C., boxing; and Ron Whitney, Boulder, Colo., track.

Through Wednesday, Russia led with 16 medals—five gold, six silver and five bronze. Japan followed with 3-3-4, and Czechoslovakia was 2-2-1.

And a gold medal in the event until he missed a gate 10 gate from the finish on his second run.

Hockey Loop Is One Big Scramble

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer
Hunch playing Keith Allen and percentage man Jean Ratelle have helped turn the National Hockey League's East Division race into the biggest scramble in years.

Allen, coach of the expansionist Philadelphia Flyers played his hunch into a 2-1 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday night and Ratelle's percentage play paid off in New York's 2-1 victory over Boston.

In other games, Detroit stung slumping Chicago 4-2, St. Louis dropped Minnesota 3-2 and Oakland jolted Los Angeles 4-1.

Just four points separate the first and fifth place teams in the East Division race and four teams are tightly packed behind Philadelphia in the West.

Boston still leads in the East and both Toronto and Chicago blew chances to tie the Bruins for the lead by losing Wednesday. The Maple Leafs fired 47 shots at Philadelphia's Doug Favell and the rookie kicked 46 of them out.

Favell got the starting assignment over Bernie Parent because Allen had a hunch. "Favell is from the Toronto area and it could have an effect on him," reasoned Allen. "He has friends coming to the game."

The young goalie put on quite a show for his pals. His spectacular goaltending kept the Flyers in the game and then he protected the lead after Claude Laforte had snapped a third-period tie.

Ed Hoekstra scored for Philadelphia in the first period and Bob Purford tied it for Toronto in the middle session. The victory moved the Flyers nine points ahead of Los Angeles.

The Rangers, fifth in the East but only four points out of first, beat the Bruins for the first time this season on a pair of goals by Ratelle. The game-winner came on the lanky center's tip-in of Rod Gilbert's power play slap shot in the second period.

"It's automatic to try and tip those kind of shots," said Ratelle. "Most of the time, if you tap it, the puck will go in. There's no goalie in hockey fast enough to react when the puck changes direction that quickly. You could say it was a percentage play."

Ratelle's first goal came on a 20-foot wrist slap in the opening period and balanced an early goal by Boston's Ken Hodge. The two goals gave Ratelle five in the last two home games and 17 for the season.

The skidding Black Hawks dropped their fourth straight and extended their winless streak to seven by losing to Detroit. Chicago is tied for second, two points back of Boston.

Third period goals by Gary Bergman and Bruce MacGregor made the difference for the Red Wings, who ended a seven-game winless string but remain mired in the East Division basement, seven points back of New York.

New Orleans Brings Off Another Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Buccaneers attacked inland from their home port of New Orleans and came away with the loot—another American Basketball Association victory.

The scene of the Buccaneers' latest success was Jackson, Miss., where 5,200 fans watched the Western Division leaders beat the Dallas Chaparrals 112-94 Wednesday night.

Second-place Denver fell three games behind New Orleans by losing 101-100 to Kentucky.

In the only other ABA action, runner-up Pittsburgh moved to within a half-game of idle Minnesota in the Eastern Division by edging New Jersey 124-119 and Anaheim topped Houston 106-96.

There were no games scheduled in the National Basketball Association.

Doug Moe and Jackie Moreland scored 21 points each for the Buccaneers, who erased a 51-50 halftime deficit, with a 35-point third quarter. Player-coach Cliff Hagan led Dallas with 20.

Denver's loss snapped a seven-game winning streak. Kentucky hit on 21 of 27 foul shots to 22 of 40 for the losing Rockets and also cashed in on six three-point baskets. Darel Carrier led Denver with 33 points. Larry Jones got 25 for Dallas.

Charlie Williams scored 13 and Connie Hawkins got 10 of Pittsburgh's 32 points in the fourth quarter to hold off New Jersey. Hawkins finished with 32 points and Williams 25. Bruce Spraggins poured in 30 and Tony Jackson 25 for New Jersey.

Anahim hit the victory column after eight straight defeats by fighting off a fourth-quarter Houston rally. Steve Chubin topped Anaheim scoring with 21 points. Willie Somerset was high for Houston with 34.

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Way On Top broke a 28-race losing streak in winning the feature race at Roosevelt Raceway Wednesday night. He paid $48.20.

Calvary Baptist Church Dedication Sunday

Dedication services at the new Children's Building of Calvary Baptist Church will be held Sunday morning at 9:10. This will precede the regular 9:30 Sunday School.

The new building which has just been completed was designed to accommodate three Nurseries, two Beginner and two Primary departments. It is centrally heated and air-conditioned. Rev. Thomas Simmons is pastor of the church which is located on West Avenue B.

Accused of Speculation With Loan

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Alaska Democrat who received a big government disaster loan after his motel was flooded says a Republican congressman's allegations about a subsequent land transaction consist of "politically motivated half-truths."

L. Donald Pruhs, who received the largest Small Business Administration loan in Fairbanks after a major flood there last August, said Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, need only to check records "to learn the truth."

Gross told the House Wednesday that shortly after receiving an SBA loan of $894,000, Pruhs bought $203,100 worth of land in Arizona.

"Where did the money come from for the Arizona deal?" Gross asked.

The Iowa Republican said Pruhs' SBA loan was approved in the first week of October and that on Oct. 19 he made a $3,000 cash down payment on 160 acres in Yuma County, Ariz. Gross added that Pruhs paid $10,500 down on a 640-acre tract on Nov. 28 with another $24,000 payment "due on this purchase" by Feb. 1.

Vernon Wright, recorder of deeds in Yuma County, agreed with Gross' statements in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

Pruhs said the value of his land purchases was "considerably below $203,000" but gave no specific figure in comments to newsmen in Seattle, Wash., after Gross' speech.

"My wife and I bought 160 acres, ourselves, as an investment and put $3,000 down, but I was only one of several Fairbanks businessmen in the deal for the other 640-acre tract, and the $10,500 down payment was made by the group, not just by me," Pruhs said.

Accusing Gross of half-truths, Pruhs said: "This is just politics in a political year, and an effort by the Republicans to blow something up out of all proportion."

Pruhs, a member of the Democratic State Central Committee in Alaska, said, "Mr. Gross needs only to check the escrow instructions recorded in Yuma County to learn the truth."

The AP reported last week that Pruhs got his $894,000 loan to repair his flood-damaged Golden Nugget Motel, while Republican Gov. Walter J. Hickel received half of the $1.2 million loan he sought for his motel, the Travelers Inn, damaged in the same flood.

Gross has urged a congressional investigation of the situation.

a thorough estimate of the magnitude of the job," an official said. "We're trying to get an idea of how much area we will be looking over. It's too soon to be worrying about what's in the ice or in the water."

The U.S. has more than 75 ex-perts at Thule, including Strategic Air Command officers, nuclear and demolitions teams, plane crash investigation officers and radiation detection units.

One of Four H-Bombs Is Ruptured

By BOB HORTON

AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. nuclear scientists in Greenland assume that one or more of four missing hydrogen bombs ruptured in Sunday's B52 crash, strewn uranium or plutonium over an icy bay, sources report.

The report followed Wednesday's official disclosure that pieces of at least one of the weapons had been found at the crash site seven miles southwest of Thule Air Force Base.

"Since there is radiation on the ice and on the parts we are assuming that at least one of the bombs ruptured," an official said.

The radiation—detected on the boots of scientists their dogged drivers and other helpers—was characterized as negligible. The report did not say whether the weapons had been damaged.

The Pentagon says it is a radiation which does not penetrate the skin. The only precaution necessary for men working in the area is to wash their footwear after work.

The Pentagon's latest statement referred to the bomb pieces as "weapons-associated hardware" because, as a spokesman put it, "it isn't what the layman would normally think of as part of a bomb."

The small parts were categorized as pieces of the "bomb assembly." No other details were given. The interior composition of an atomic weapon is top secret.

Search teams have barely had a chance to go over the area. A source estimated the actual amount of search time since Sunday as four to five hours. Arctic darkness has shrouded the scene most of the time. And stormy weather forced cancellation of the 64-hour dog sled trip from the coast to the impact area Wednesday.

There are only about two hours "sub-twilight" each day in the polar darkness. Nor is the ice flat. "It's more like a stormy ocean with the waves frozen in place," said one official.

The air force bomber apparently disintegrated. Bits of debris and what appears to be a "fuel-burn pattern" extend over an area 50 by 500 yards.

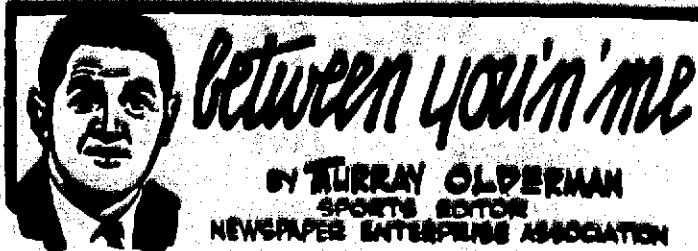

Sources acknowledged the possibility that the bombs are imbedded in the seven-foot-thick ice covering North Star Bay or perhaps at the bottom of its 800-foot depth.

If so, any search could extend longer than the 80 days the Navy spent retrieving another hydrogen bomb off the Spanish coast in 1966. The ice covering North Star Bay does not thaw until about June.

If the bombs don't turn up on the surface, what is the next step?

"Right now we just don't have

South Vietnam increased 4,000 men last week to total 486,000 by last Saturday. The total the Saturday before also had been reported at 486,000 last Thursday, and spokesmen said the changes were administrative and represented "bookkeeping" alterations.

Grasping Golf Pros Threaten Popularity Grip

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—(NEA)—The selfishness of the playing pros puts a crimp in the prosperous image of tournament golf. That comes straight from one of the eminent participants in that prosperity, former PGA champion Bob Rosburg. "The players," he noted, "say we're paying for it, so we can play where we want to. They don't do a thing to make it easier for the sponsors."

And the sponsors pay the bulk of the freight in a sport that has now upped its prize money to $5 million.

"Golf's beginning to look like baseball, moving franchises to new cities every year," argued Rosburg. "Pretty soon we face the threat of running out of cities. Look at all the ones we've lost out this way—Sacramento, Fresno, Bakersfield, Orange County (where Tony Lemm beat me in a playoff for his first victory on the tour), Ontario, Portland, Seattle and even San Francisco this year."

At the age of 41, Rosburg has seen the game of golf from all sides. The same year he won the PGA, 1959, he was chairman of the Players Tournament Committee and also missed winning the U.S. Open by one stroke. And Bob has also been involved in the television end of it as a color commentator at the Masters, the Open and the PGA.

This year, Rosburg is going into a fourth phase of golf—the club pro. Starting April 1, he takes up residency at the Westwood Country Club in St. Louis, where former Open champ Ed Furgol was once based, and he'll be analyzing backers' slices and tromping 18 holes until Oct. 15.

"A guy's got to decide," he said philosophically, "when he needs a little security. I guess I got tired of sleeping in strange beds and on planes. I also had a hell of a time physically. The first of last year, I flew out here and went into traction for 10 days. I had a pinched nerve in my neck, and the pain went down my right shoulder and into my arm."

"Golf's one of the toughest games in the world on backs. You're hitting against the back and stopping it. Your hands and arms move, but your body doesn't go forward. It turns out of the way."

Still, Rosburg feels good enough now to compete in some 20 tournaments a year, as much as guys like Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, and he'll be able to take time off in the summer to make the big ones—the Open, Masters and PGA.

As one of the elder statesmen on the tour, he has the authority to deliver pungent comments. Bobby never made the real big money because he reached his peak before the purses accelerated. In his biggest year, he realized $31,000 in official money. Yet there's no bitterness about the domination of the Nicklaus-Palmer entente.

"Listen," he said, "they helped me. They made the bigger dough possible, a little city like Greensboro (N.C.) putting up $135,000. Look what Arnie gets for exhibitions now—$7,500 on week days and $10,000 on weekends—and he still turns all of them down. Well, I figure I'm worth a fifth of Palmer. So Instead of $500, I'm able to get $1,500."

When he directed the players' tournament committee, Rosburg tried to alleviate the dilemma of tournament sponsors in needing the glamor names to make their events successful. He suggested that every man on the tour be required to compete in every city at least once every three years. He also proposed that the No. 1 money winner of the year list his choice of 20 cities before the year, and the other pros have their order of preference according to their places on the list. But they won't buy any idea that'll inhibit their independence.

So now sponsors start wooing the big names a full six months before their events are scheduled, hoping for player commitments. Even then, they're not binding. A player officially doesn't have to enter a tournament until the Sunday night, at 6 o'clock, before it starts.

"You can see," said Rosburg, "how the sponsors can be left holding the bag."

Life in Arkansas

By TOMMY YATES
Associated Press Writer

The week of the ice storm certain must have pushed the outdoor types and lovers of nature to their fullest limits.

Those types, you know, are a hearty breed who would watch goosebumps pop up on their skin rather than admit it was cold.

Treated as a novelty at first, the icy weather soon produced many "burrs" and expressions of wanting to stay in bed.

One afternoon in Little Rock, however, a man in his late 20s was seen strolling down the sidewalk without a coat, steam spurting from his nostrils, his hands dug deep into his pockets.

Obviously, he was cold just like everyone else. He stopped to chat with an acquaintance, rubbed his hands and said: "It's not so cold."

Some consider it unmanly to complain of the cold and will go to great lengths to dissolution rather than admit it. Some actually pretend to enjoy ice-covered streets, snow and disrupted electrical service. One man even said: "Isn't this fun?"

In a way, it is kind of exciting. In fact, it's a challenge trying to think of how to beat the hazardous street conditions and how to keep warm and eat without electricity.

Some persons, though, just can't win, as the Jonesboro Sun pointed out.

For two days, a Jonesboro man sneered at the icy streets and refused to put chains on his car. He just knew the ice would melt soon.

For two days, he walked to work, but on the second day he had a service station attendant arrange to have chains put on his car, which was at home.

The car was delivered to him at his office, but by that afternoon the ice melted and the chains had to be taken off.

He was out $2.50 for installment of chains that were never used. Fortunately, however, he didn't have to buy the chains. He keeps them around for just such an emergency.

Roy Attaway's Outdoor Notebook

NEW YORK, N.Y.—Rain drops freckled the sandy ruts and a gentle sea wind rattled the palmetto fronds. Fifteen yards ahead, a liver-and-white pointer bitch named Mary was casting anxiously through the broom sedge. Suddenly she stopped, quivering like a 10-penny nail hit with a ball-peen hammer.

Sonny Waring eased up behind Mary, carrying a 12-gauge automatic at high port. Mary began to slink forward.

her forepaw flicking to classic stance every time she stopped.

"He's running," Sonny said. He kept a cautious 10 yards behind the dog.

Mary froze with her nose three feet from a clump of scrub. Sonny took one step forward and a cock pheasant burst from the clump. Sonny nailed the bird on the rise.

We hunted on and, despite the rain, shot our limit each of pheasant and chukar partridge. A day like many others spent afield... with one startling exception: We were hunting in the Eastern part of South Carolina, and neither pheasant nor chukar are native gamebirds.

That hunt some six or seven years ago was my introduction to preserve shooting.

Since then I've hunted on many other shooting preserves all over the country—admittedly with varying degrees of success and pleasure, but all the while realizing that they were the promise of the future of American sportsmen.

Shrinking hunting lands are a growing problem, and regulated preserves seem to be at least one solution. Preserve shooting at its best is very good, at its worst, better than nothing.

It's a simple formula: The preserve owner provides you with the land, stocked with game (everything from birds to bill elk), guides, dogs, or whatever is necessary. You pay a flat fee which entitles you to X amount of game. For anything over that, you pay per bird (or whatever) shot. In some cases, you pay per bird released. You're not guaranteed your limit, but you are guaranteed a shot at something.

To many people, preserve shooting is a last resort. But to the harassed urban dweller, it solves all the problems.

At present, there are more than 800 such preserves in the United States. Prices and standards vary greatly, depending on the services and facilities offered.

The gray whale occasionally reaches a length of 50 feet.

BOB ROSBURG

This year, Rosburg is going into a fourth phase of golf—the club pro. Starting April 1, he takes up residency at the Westwood Country Club in St. Louis, where former Open champ Ed Furgol was once based, and he'll be analyzing backers' slices and tromping 18 holes until Oct. 15.

"A guy's got to decide," he said philosophically, "when he needs a little security. I guess I got tired of sleeping in strange beds and on planes. I also had a hell of a time physically. The first of last year, I flew out here and went into traction for 10 days. I had a pinched nerve in my neck, and the pain went down my right shoulder and into my arm."

"Golf's one of the toughest games in the world on backs. You're hitting against the back and stopping it. Your hands and arms move, but your body doesn't go forward. It turns out of the way."

Still, Rosburg feels good enough now to compete in some 20 tournaments a year, as much as guys like Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, and he'll be able to take time off in the summer to make the big ones—the Open, Masters and PGA.

As one of the elder statesmen on the tour, he has the authority to deliver pungent comments. Bobby never made the real big money because he reached his peak before the purses accelerated. In his biggest year, he realized $31,000 in official money. Yet there's no bitterness about the domination of the Nicklaus-Palmer entente.

"Listen," he said, "they helped me. They made the bigger dough possible, a little city like Greensboro (N.C.) putting up $135,000. Look what Arnie gets for exhibitions now—$7,500 on week days and $10,000 on weekends—and he still turns all of them down. Well, I figure I'm worth a fifth of Palmer. So

CHAMPION DRIVER A. J. Foyt is as particular about the condition of his family car as he is with the racing Coyotes of his own design.

Servicing Keeps Car On the Go

By BOB COCHNAR
NEA Automotive Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Although the status symbol for racing drivers these days is not a big superpowered street machine but a single- or twin-engine airplane, the men still know the importance of proper vehicle maintenance.

Jack Brabham, Graham Hill, A. J. Foyt, Parnelli Jones, David Pearson, Mario Andretti, Jim Clark and a number of other champion drivers all take to the air when they're not racing. Personal cars, for them, are merely easy ways of moving from A to B. Yet their cars are always in mint condition.

Foyt, who is probably the world's winningest driver (three-time winner at Indy, for openers), admits to being a fanatic on preventive maintenance.

"Don't let anybody tell you a car doesn't need regular attention, even a new one," age motorist," Foyt says. "So we change oil after every race, just like any smart motorist does every 60 days."

His concern for car care extends to the family automobiles as well, although he relies on a local service station to perform the maintenance required to keep his warranty valid and his car operating reliably.

"These guys know their business," A. J. says. "Cars today are so complicated that one man can't be an expert on every phase. I know my cars but I still need lots of expert help to keep them in top shape."

A strong believer in safety inspections, Foyt insists on them for his family car so that his wife and children are protected.

"Many accidents could be prevented if people would only take their cars to a service station every couple of months and have them properly inspected. Brake and steering troubles are often never discovered until after an accident. Yet it takes only a few seconds to see whether there's plenty of brake fluid in the master cylinder or whether the tie rods need tightening."

When the tremendous strains of racing produce a breakdown in one of Foyt's cars, he doesn't rest until he has uncovered the nature of the failure.

In 1965, when driving in a 100-mile race in Milwaukee, the left rear wheel suspension of his car snapped when he was negotiating a turn at 140 miles an hour. Foyt spun into a retaining wall and broke several ribs. Despite the injury, he worked until 4 a.m. to find the cause.

"For 10 laps, $50,000 was a lot to spend," he says. But he insists that such failures must be eliminated if a driver is to race successfully.

"Remember the last 500 at Indy? The turbine car was actually a faster machine and lost most of the race. But it broke down. I won because my car performed perfectly throughout the race."

Racing cars can't really be compared to street machines. But both have four wheels, brakes, clutches, engines and electrical systems. And they won't function unless they're maintained.

THE DOCTOR SAYS
Committee 'Polices' TV Doctors, Nurses
By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

When you watch your favorite doctor on television, how accurate is his portrayal? The television writers and producers, not wishing to become a laughing stock, called on the Los Angeles County Medical Association for technical advice in 1954 and 1955. Because the programs produced in Hollywood were distributed throughout the nation this function was then turned over to the American Medical Association and that organization created the Physicians' Advisory Committee on Television, Radio and Motion Pictures.

Its nine members represent 26 specialties. All programs are first cleared through the Broadcast Standards Office. The usual procedure when a writer has finished his script is for that office to send a copy to the committee. A doctor reviews it and telephones his suggestions to the broadcasting company.

As an example, a script called for a doctor in a hospital emergency room to give an injection of tetanus antitoxin to a patient who had incurred a severe cut. The reviewer insisted that the doctor first give a skin test to insure that the patient was not allergic to horse serum. This is not only good medical practice but also good health education for the viewing public.

Again a well-known actor playing the part of a surgeon refused to wear a face mask in the operating room because it would hide his lovely features. The studio was persuaded that the image of a careful competent surgeon in this case was more important than the image of the matinee idol.

Sizzling love scenes between nurses and interns in the hospital corridors were deleted and a "change of venue" insisted on. Such scenes in real life do not take place on the "company's time." If a nurse falls to answer your call light within 30 seconds of the time you press your button, it is because she has many other patients who are just as sick as you are—not because it would interfere with her love life.

When medical subjects are properly presented on mass media they can have a tremendous impact on the viewer. In one sequence dealing with a woman who had a breast cancer, the attending doctor said that a routine periodic physical examination would save many women from fatal cancers of the breast and other organs. Keeping the medical sequences in your entertainment authentic is a valuable behind-the-scenes service.

club. He thought about taking the club finesse but decided that it was wrong and he would go down two if he tried to make the hand that way.

Also, he would still make his contract if East had started with only two trumps so South rose with dummy's remaining high club and led a fourth diamond. East ruffed that also, and South had lost a game contract that would have made against any lead but the one that West had selected.

West took a long while to select his opening lead. He went over the bidding carefully and finally came to the conclusion that his partner's spade raise had been based on four good trumps and little else. Then he started to work out the North-South holdings. Obviously, South held minimum high card strength with probably a six card suit, three spades and doubletons in each minor. That would give North one spade, two hearts and five cards each in diamonds and clubs.

A trump lead was indicated to stop dummy's potential ruffing power and West almost had the ace of hearts out of his hand and on the table. It was lucky that he reconsidered and led the deuce of hearts instead. With the ace of hearts lead South would have had no trouble making five or six odd, depending on whether West cashed a spade at trick two.

The deuce of hearts lead was an entirely different proposition. South couldn't draw trumps because West still held the ace. If he led a spade, West would win, lead his ace of trumps and take two more spade tricks.

South saw all this and also saw an extra shot or two in his locker. He played out his ace and jack of diamonds, entered dummy with a high club and led a high diamond. East ruffed and South overruffed.

Then South led a second

'30' - Bosh!
Old Home Town
All About Cats

A minor irritation for newspaper copy-readers is the habit of pretentious local correspondents of marking the end of an item with the numeral "30."

It's a curbside legend that newspaper copy-readers use "30" for "End" - only they don't. They once did - years before this writer was born - but today it's an affectation... like that of the illiterate producers of early movies who ended a 5-cent film with the $75 word "Finis."

There is some dispute around copy-desks on the origin of "30," but the best minds trace it back to the days when practically all newspaper wire stories were stolen from the railroad telegraph.

Railroad telegraphers - and here again we are going by legend - traditionally ended a message with the signal "30" - and early newspapermen picked up the symbol along with their stolen news.

But for two generations the newspapers have had their own wire associations, "30" is taboo, and you mark the end of an item by simply writing the double-barred character known as the typewriter's pound symbol.

The returning motorist figures he's approaching home when he gets within reach of Radio KXAR. But it's only when he tunes in the Mary Anita Laseter - Verlaime Jones program and hears Mary Anita say: "Now that bird is a blue-jay, because he's really blue - and man, man, is he a mean bird!" - that you know you're really home.

Feild Objects to U.S. 'Borrowing' of Highway Trust Funds

Editor The Star: Enclosed is a copy of Resolution No. 12, which I presented to the Legislative Council Wednesday. It was adopted and is being sent to our Senators and Representatives in Washington.

I am hopeful we can avoid happening to the Highway Trust Fund what has happened to the Social Security Trust Fund. From the reports of what has been proposed five per cent of the money accumulating in the Trust Fund will be immediately withdrawn and credited to the General Fund and IOU's placed in lieu thereof. Said IOU's will then have to be redeemed out of future borrowings or out of general taxes.

This would result in the highway users being taxed twice for when the gas tax is paid the tax money goes into the Highway Trust Fund to be used for highway purposes, then 5 per cent would be lent to the general fund and the only way it would be returned is through general taxes collected by the U.S. Treasury. This will result in double taxation. Most sincerely,

TALBOT FEILD, JR.
State Representative

RESOLUTION 12
WHEREAS, news articles have indicated that the Federal Government is planning to withhold five per cent (5) of the Federal Highway Trust Funds during the next fiscal year; and

U.S. Enters Long Strike in Copper

WASHINGTON (AP) - A newly named federal panel may begin later this week trying to unravel the 6½-month-old copper industry strike that has idled some 60,000 workers.

Appointment of the three-member panel Wednesday night appeared to head off at least for the time being any decision by President Johnson to invoke the Taft-Hartley Act to produce a settlement.

Some Congress members from 20 copper-producing states have urged use of Taft-Hartley, under which members of the 26 striking unions would be ordered back to work during an 80-day cooling off period.

The major issue is the unions' demand for industry-wide bargaining under which all contracts would expire at the same time.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz and Secretary of Commerce Alexander B. Trowbridge asked the panel to meet with both sides in the dispute, which has halted virtually all U.S. copper production.

Wirtz and Trowbridge named to the panel George Reedy, Johnson's former press secretary and now president of Struthers Research & Development Corp., in Washington; Dr. George W. Taylor, professor of business, University of Pennsylvania; and the Rt. Rev. George Higgins, chairman of the National Catholic Conference in Washington.

A Labor Department spokesman said the group might be ready to begin talks toward the end of the week.

Other major issues in the strike, the industry's longest, include wages, pensions and fringe benefits.

But the biggest bar to settlement has been the unions' demand for industry-wide contracts. One of the major firms struck, Kennecott Copper Co., has filed an unfair labor practice charge with the National Labor Relations Board arguing that union efforts to force industry-wide bargaining are illegal.

The unions seek a hike in wages which now range from $2.61 to $3.68 hourly to a new range of $3.01 to $4.25 over three years. Phelps Dodge has offered a new range of $2.89 to $4.09 over the three-year period.

Supreme Court Not Concerned With the Motive of New Law

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court has given a cool reception to contentions the 1965 law making it a crime to burn draft cards was a congressional "act of hysteria" designed "to punish those beatniks."

The American Civil Liberties Union also argued Wednesday before the high court that draft-card burning is "symbolic speech" protected by the Constitution.

Both arguments put forth by ACLU lawyer Marvin M. Karpatkin drew icy responses from the justices.

Karpatkin maintained Congress passed the legislation to punish conduct it considered unpatriotic. "The only legislative purpose here," he said, "was in stamping out dissent."

But Chief Justice Earl Warren wondered if a soldier who broke his weapon in Vietnam could be considered to have performed an act of symbolic speech.

And Justice Abe Fortas drew a parallel to a dissenter throwing a brick through a White House window or his "quivering body" in front of a train carrying troops.

Both Fortas and Justice John M. Harlan suggested it isn't the court's function to examine the motives of Congress.

Fortas told Karpatkin, "You have no case to support your argument that a law of Congress can be declared unconstitutional because of improper motive."

The hearing brought the court in touch with the emotional way some young Americans are dissenting from the Vietnam war. The question is: Can they do so by burning their draft cards without winding up in jail?

So far 21 American youths have been indicted, and 14 of them convicted, under the law. It was passed, without public hearings, 393 to 1 by the House on Aug. 10, 1965 and by voice vote of the Senate three days later.

Presumably its use will pick up if the court reverses the judgment of the U.S. Circuit Court in Boston and declares the statute constitutional.

In the case at hand, David P. O'Brien, a 19-year-old pacifist, burned his draft card on the steps of a Boston courthouse in March 1966 and turned over the charred remains to FBI agents who watched him.

The act, which could put O'Brien in jail for four years, was described by Karpatkin as a peaceful "expression of dissent."

"Abstract discussion," the somber, dark-haired lawyer argued, "is not the only form of speech protected by the First Amendment."

Cockrill May Run for Governor

By ED SHEARER
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) - House Speaker Sterling R. Cockrill Jr. of Little Rock says he is "wrestling" with the idea of seeking the governorship, realizing that he would be opposed by the "old-line, Old Guard, moss-backed members" of the state Democratic Party.

Cockrill's name has been in the gubernatorial speculation for almost a year but his remarks Wednesday were his strongest yet.

He said he was "seriously considering" the race but that he had not yet reached a decision.

"When I do, it will be my own," Cockrill said, adding that it would not be "predicated on anything any other Democratic candidate says or does."

His remarks about his candidacy were guarded ones until Wednesday when he opened up on the state AFL-CIO sponsored television program, "Labor's Language," moderated by J. Bill Becker, president of the labor group. The program will be shown Sunday on Little Rock station KARK-TV.

Cockrill said that former Gov. Orval Faubus recently laid the groundwork for some Democratic candidates to be labeled Republicans when Faubus said there were GOP plants in the Democratic party.

The speaker also said that Sen. Q. Byrum Hurst of Hot Springs and W. R. "Witt" Stephens, chairman of the Board of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., had recently implied that Cockrill had GOP sentiments.

"I am a lifelong Democrat," Cockrill said. He said he had offers to turn Republican, had turned them down and would not elaborate on them.

Faubus recently named four possible Democratic gubernatorial candidates, including himself, Stephens and U.S. Reps. Wilbur Mills and David Pryor. "It's an old political adage - if you're afraid of your opponent you don't mention his name," Cockrill said.

Asked about the condition of the state Democratic party today, Cockrill said, "Sick. We are really sick."

He said he did not know whether internal problems in the party could be solved before the primary election in July. He said any external problems would be Republicans, but the internal ones were causing the greatest damage.

The special legislative session scheduled to begin Feb. 5 is being called because of politics, Cockrill said.

Research in Universities Cut by U.S.

By DICK BARNES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Defense and space agency spending for research at universities is being sliced by 20 per cent this year. A private government memo says the cuts threaten programs and jobs at some schools.

Other government agencies also are reducing research spending, putting an additional squeeze on the academic community.

Universities that exultantly rode the government research roller-coaster to a $1.6 billion crest are beginning to tremble on the ride downhill.

Cliff Robertson's Dream Comes True; Picks His Own Film

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) - Cliff Robertson is a take a chance guy.

Although the handsome young actor has been one of the busiest and most successful performers in television, he felt that in none of his 13 movies had he been given a really great role.

"Some of them were pretty suffocating," he said. "So since the mountain wouldn't come to me, I decided to go to the mountain."

Five years ago he bought the film rights to a short story called "Flowers for Algernon," by Daniel Keyes. It is the touching story of a young bakery worker who aspires to lead a normal life but is handicapped by the fact he has an intelligence quotient of only 59.

Retitled "Charly" - that's how the retarded boy spells his name - the film will be released by ABC-Paramount in a few months.

"I've had this story in my guts for five long years," said Cliff, who worked on the writing of the screen play and also beat on Hollywood's golden doors until he found a financial sponsor.

"I may not make a nickel out of it, but I'll at least have the satisfaction of having done it. I didn't want to be the kind of a guy who 20 years from now would be sitting around saying to himself, 'If only I...'"

Actually, Robertson is probably overcritical of his own work in films. His screen credits include "Picnic," "PT-109," "The

'Confession' by Pueblo's Skipper Fake

SEOUL (AP) - The North Korean radio broadcast today what it said was the voice of Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher confessing that his U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo was spying in North Korean territorial waters when it was captured.

There were only minor variations from a written "confession" issued earlier which contained a hint the North Koreans may release Bucher and his crew.

The voice delivered the statement hurriedly in a monotone, stumbling over some of the words.

In Washington, the Defense Department already had denounced the purported confession as "a travesty on the facts." Assistant Secretary of Defense Phil G. Goulding said: "The style and wording of the document provide unmistakable evidence in themselves that this was not written or prepared by an American."

Meanwhile, ground clashes continued along the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea. The U.S. Army announced that one American soldier was killed Wednesday by "hostile fire" while guarding a barrier fence, and nine American soldiers were wounded in clashes Wednesday and today, bringing the number of Americans wounded in action since Sunday to 12.

Two South Korean soldiers attached to the U.S. 2nd Infantry Division were killed and one wounded in a clash with an unknown number of North Korean infiltrators early today south of the Imjin River, the army said.

The North Korean Central News Agency (CNA), monitored in Tokyo, said the American who was killed was shot by "a South Korean armed guerrilla unit." It did not mention any Communist guerrilla casualties in what it described as "a fierce engagement."

Minor Accident Here Wednesday

Hope police were called to the scene of an accident Wednesday at 2 p.m. when a car driven by Ralph E. Halbert, turning left on South Main street at 15th street, was hit from behind by a car driven by Louie Gilbert Criswell. Minor damage resulted. No charges were filed. City Officer A. C. Sinyard investigated.

14,000 of Air Force Reserves Called Up as Korea War Looms

Fleet Cited on Failure to Send Planes

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Defense officials have dropped squarely on Navy commanders in the Pacific the responsibility for not sending help to the intelligence ship Pueblo as she faced capture off North Korea.

They told newsmen Wednesday the decision against sending warplanes to the aid of the Pueblo was made by field commanders without asking Washington.

"There was no request from field commanders to Washington to take any steps," the officials said, and no instructions were sent from Washington to the ship.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara got the word of the Pueblo's troubles at 12:23 a.m. EST Tuesday, only 9 minutes before the Navy vessel sent its final message, officials said.

By that time, according to the Pentagon's chronology, the Pueblo had been boarded by North Korean sailors for about 38 minutes and ordered to follow Communist patrol boats into Wonsan Harbor.

The Pentagon has said Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, skipper of the small, lightly-armed Pueblo, asked for help only once - when the boarding began. This was 1 hour and 45 minutes after the Pueblo first was challenged by a Red patrol craft and ordered to heave to.

The Defense Department said Tuesday that "time and distance factors made it impossible to respond to the call that was made when the ship was being boarded."

But under questioning Wednesday, Defense Department officials introduced a note of uncertainty by saying they were unable to state why field commanders did not send aid.

These officials assumed the commanders had considered such factors as the potential enemy force on alert, the possible enemy reaction to the commitment of U.S. planes and the location of available U.S. airpower, among other things.

This implied the likelihood the United States could muster only a relatively small covey of jet fighters for a rescue operation, and that they might have met heavy opposition close to North Korea's home grounds.

There is a force of 18 U.S. Air Force jets at two bases in South Korea and some sources have suggested they could not have been made ready in time to have done the Pueblo much good. Another three U.S. squadrons totaling some 54 planes are stationed in Japan.

The defense officials - who disclaimed any intent to "conceal a foulup" if there was one - spoke of field commanders, but made it clear they meant Navy commanders to whom Bucher was subordinate.

"He reports to the Navy all the way through," said one official. He said he was unable to narrow the term field commander.

Given 30 Years on Rape Charge

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) - Ernest Junior Maxwell, 30, of Pottsville (Conway County) pleaded guilty Wednesday to a charge of raping an 11-year-old girl and was sentenced to 30 years in prison by Circuit Judge Russell Roberts of Conway.

Maxwell and Lawrence Broussard, 34, of Louisiana also were sentenced to two years in prison on a charge of escaping from the Conway County Jail in Morrilton in November.

In addition, Maxwell was sentenced to seven years for grand larceny - car theft - during the escape.

Biggest Battle in Vietnam

By GEORGE ESPEY
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) - An armada of American bombers pounded North Vietnamese gun and troop concentrations threatening U.S. Marines in the Khe Sanh valley for the sixth straight day today in one of the biggest air campaigns of the Vietnam war.

Despite nearly 6,000 tons of bombs and record air attacks for the third day in a row against the dug-in North Vietnamese, enemy guns continued to hit at the Khe Sanh base and the three strategic hills the Marines control just to the northwest.

By noon today, the North Vietnamese had dropped another 20 mortar and rocket rounds on the Marine positions protecting the northwestern approach to South Vietnam 16 miles below the demilitarized zone.

The day's barrage followed on the heels of perhaps 300 rounds of heavy artillery, rockets and mortars that Communist gunners slammed into the combat base and the adjacent peaks Wednesday night, killing seven Leathernecks and wounding another 77. Of the 77 wounded, 37 had to be evacuated.

The North Vietnamese fired their 152mm guns, their biggest artillery, at Khe Sanh for the first time.

U.S. officers continued to expect a big enemy offensive against Khe Sanh. But the heaviest ground fighting reported was on the central coast some 230 miles to the southeast, where troops of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division and the South Korean Capitol Division reported 179 North Vietnamese killed in fighting Tuesday and Wednesday near Phu Cat.

AP correspondent Peter Arnett reported from Marine headquarters at Da Nang that the Leathernecks apparently feel they can hold the Khe Sanh combat base but other positions in the neighboring hills are being dangerously squeezed.

Despite the massive aerial bombardment, four landing zones in the hills are still too hot to land.

Shoe-Shine Girl Is Big Hit in Barbershop - and She Loves It

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Ellen Provost is a shining example of what a curvy young girl with lots of polish in a miniskirt can do at a barbershop.

Since she became Pittsburgh's only shoeshine girl three weeks ago the customers at the Razor's Edge - a men's hair styling shop - have looked sharp and waxed eloquent.

"It's groovy," agrees Ellen, a 20-year-old blue-eyed brunette whose long tresses extend almost as far as her skirt.

"I'm supposed to look young and fresh and sexy," she said before sitting down to polish another pair of shoes.

She took the job, she said, because she was out of work and needed money to go back to school.

Now she makes $10, even on a bad day, at 50 cents a shine plus tips that usually are generous; working from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. six days a week.

"I never had shined a pair of shoes," Ellen said. "The fellows just told me what they knew about it and I went from there."

But the brushing will bush you, she said. "If I hadn't been

8 Gls Hit in Frontier Fighting

WASHINGTON (AP) - More than 14,000 Air Force military reservists are being called to active duty in the wake of the North Korean takeover of a U.S. ship, the Pentagon announced today.

The Pentagon announcement followed speedily on the heels of word from the White House that President Johnson had called for the recall to active duty of a number of Air Force and Navy air reservists.

A Pentagon spokesman said the 14,000 are included in Air Force and Air National Guard units, and other Navy reserve units also are involved. No number was available immediately for the Navy.

SEOUL (AP) - As tension continued following the capture of the Pueblo, North Koreans tried to break through the American sector of the Korean front today and wounded eight U.S. soldiers.

The North Koreans also attacked a watch tower just south of the demilitarized zone with hand grenades but caused no damage, a U.S. Army spokesman said.

Sporadic shooting continued from about 2:30 a.m. until early afternoon. The Communists made attempts to break through the fence along the buffer zone, the American added.

The Communist infiltrators were all repulsed but it was not known if they suffered any casualties, the spokesman said.

Besides the eight Americans wounded, he said, two South Korean soldiers attached to the U.S. 2nd Infantry Division were killed and another was wounded.

This brought the American casualties in the two days of clashes to one dead and 12 wounded.

South Korean troops pursuing the remnants of the 31-man North Korean assassination group that invaded Seoul Sunday night killed two more of them today.

This made 19 members of the band killed, and another was captured. The invaders killed 16 South Koreans, including six civilians, and wounded 35.

South Korean Foreign Minister Choi Kyu-hah denounced the Communist seizure of the Pueblo.

Pueblo's Position Crucial in Crisis

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — Trying to guess at this moment at the North Koreans and the Vietnamese Communists is up to is like trying to guess why Santa Claus always looks like it's a bit of a fantasy. The reason is simple: Nothing positive has been disclosed yet about the motives behind their most recent actions. This week the North Koreans captured the USS Pueblo, a spy intelligence-gathering ship loaded with electronics, and her crew of 81 plus two civilians off the Korean coast. You really need a crystal ball on this one. One idea comes to mind immediately: That the capture was part of a plot worked out with North Vietnam to add to the pressure on this country to make peace in Vietnam, for otherwise it might be faced with a war in Korea, too. But before any guess is sensible one question has to be answered beyond dispute, and that isn't happened yet: Was the American ship in international waters, where she would have a right to be, or was she in Korean territorial waters, spying on Korea? There's not much doubt about the spying. The ship was equipped for that. The North Koreans say the Pueblo was in their territorial waters and issued what they say is a "confession" by the American skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd Mark Bucher, admitting his ship was spying within Korean territorial waters. The Defense Department quickly called the alleged confession "a travesty on the facts" and that, judging by the kind of language used, Bucher didn't have written the kind of statement attributed to him. But—at the White House President Johnson's press secretary, George Christian, was something less than positive about where the ship was. "To the best of our information," Christian said, it was in international waters. He refused to be more positive. This brings up the memory of the American U-2 spy plane shot down over the Soviet Union in 1960 during the administration of President Dwight D. Eisenhower. This government at first denied the plane was on a spy mission, tried to say it was simply gathering weather information. The Soviets had too much evidence and a few days later the United States admitted the plane had been spying. But the guessing on this Korean episode is peanuts compared with some of the guessing about North Vietnam. For weeks, perhaps months, there has been this kind of guessing. North Vietnam believes public feeling in this country is so intensely antiwar that Johnson is bound to be defeated in this year's election and that then maybe business can be done with his Republican successor. Until then, as this particular guess sees it, the North Vietnamese have decided they must continue the war doggedly. But there's a soft spot in this thinking. Of the four Republicans talked of as possible presidential candidates, three are generally behind Johnson on the war. They are former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, and California's Gov. Ronald Reagan. The fourth, Michigan's Gov. George Romney, has been all over the lot on the war but very recently backed Johnson on continued bombing of the North. All kinds of hocus-pocus can be read into North Vietnam's persistent refusal to accept Johnson's condition for ending the bombing: That the North must give some assurance it would then be willing to talk peace quickly. What could be the motives behind the refusal. Several come to mind: That the North Vietnamese are not anxious to end the war, that the longer the war, the more antiwar sentiment in this country will pressure Johnson into making concessions, or that they're just mumbling about peace to make themselves look good in the eyes of the world. Big Benefit Party Defies Pickets

By LOUISE COOK

NEW YORK (AP) — Politics and partying, demonstrators and diamonds were features of a $150-per-person benefit ball Wednesday night. The guest list was headed by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. A crowd of antiwar demonstrators ranging up to 300 in number milled outside the Plaza Hotel on Fifth Avenue in advance of Humphrey's appearance at the annual Diamond Ball for the Institute of International Education. Most of the pickets had left by the time Humphrey arrived—almost an hour late. Police said 33 of the demonstrators were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct. Inside the hotel, meanwhile, about 400 guests slipped cocktails and gazed at the $257,000 worth of diamonds on display in a heavily guarded case and at the uncounted thousands of dollars of diamonds worn by the women. Although Humphrey refused to comment either on domestic or international affairs, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., discussed issues with newsmen. Questioned about the incident involving North Korea and the USS Pueblo, Mansfield said, "I

Tabernacle Revival to Begin on Sunday

REV. AND MRS. LYNDELL BALLENGER
Mid-winter revival services will begin this Sunday, Jan. 28, at First Assembly of God, 322 North Main, with Rev. Lyndell Ballenger of Springdale, Arkansas as the Evangelist. Rev. Ballenger is a graduate of Central Bible College, Springfield, Missouri. Since his graduation in 1963, Rev. Ballenger has been active in the ministry of Evangelism. Services will be conducted nightly at 7:30, except Saturday. "In addition to his preaching ministry, Rev. Ballenger and his wife are very talented musicians and will be singing in each of the services," so stated the Rev. Willhite, Pastor of the church.

Chances for Rights Bill Are Slight

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Even its most ardent Senate admirers concede President Johnson's civil rights program has little chance of getting through Congress this year. Johnson offered the package Wednesday in a special message asking Congress for measures to ban discrimination in housing, employment and federal jury selection. He also urged protection for Negroes and whites who are helping Negroes try to exercise their civil rights. It marked the third time around for a program first submitted in 1966 and reoffered last year. The House passed the package of measures in 1966, after modifying the President's open-housing proposal, but the legislation was strangled by a Senate filibuster. Senate backers of the program take a grim view of its prospects now, partly because of the climate created by riots and other racial disturbances. But the President told Congress action should not be delayed because "the air is filled with the voices of extremists on both sides." Although his over-all civil rights program is in trouble, parts of it are making headway on a piecemeal basis. Shortly after he submitted his message, a House Judiciary subcommittee unanimously approved a bill to ban discrimination in selection of federal juries. Similar to a bill passed by the Senate without objection last December, it provides for random selection of jurors from voters' lists without regard to race, religion, sex or economic status. Senate sponsors of the measure had steered it to passage as a jury reform bill rather than civil rights legislation. However, a separate bill to prohibit discrimination in the selection of jurors in state courts has proved much more controversial and appears unlikely to pass. Johnson's renewed call for legislation to ban discrimination in the sale or rental of housing also is given no chance by its backers. Under the President's proposal it would take effect over a three-year period.

Castro May Switch to Party Post

By FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
HAVANA (AP) — An unusual meeting of the Cuban Communist party's central committee has aroused speculation that Fidel Castro may change his titles while retaining power over Cuba. The speculation was that Castro might resign as prime minister and concentrate more on Communist party affairs, while still directing government policy from his No. one position within the party. The prime ministry would become a government administrative post, according to this theory, and Castro would turn it over to his brother Raul, new deputy prime minister and chief of the armed forces, or to President Osvaldo Dorticos. The unusual aspect of the central committee meeting was that it was announced in advance. Observers could not recall this happening before. And the announcement referred to Castro as the party's general secretary, rather than first secretary, which he has been since the party was formed in October 1965. The meeting was closed, and it was uncertain when the committee would make public its results. In fact, it was not even known if it was over. In its one-paragraph announcement of the meeting, the official Communist newspaper Granma said it was called in the name of the eight-man politburo headed by Castro. Castro became prime minister in February 1959, one month after his revolution overthrew Fulgencio Batista. The first prime minister, Jose Miro Cardona, quit after an argument over internal policy. Castro resigned as prime minister a few months later as a maneuver to oust Manuel Urrutia, the moderate judge he had appointed president. Castro went on radio and television to accuse Urrutia of being anti-Communist and behaving traitorously. Crowds in the streets chanted for Urrutia's dismissal, and the president resigned. The Cabinet named Dorticos, a Communist, president, and Castro resumed the prime ministry. Senate, but removed by the state Supreme Court. Malone said he had wanted to retire under the provisions of the quasi-judicial system, which was under fire at the time. He said Rockefeller assured him that he wanted to eliminate some abuses of the retirement law. Malone said he had considered resigning during the last days of former Gov. Orval Faubus' administration, but that Rockefeller had urged him to stay and not give Faubus an opportunity to appoint someone. Malone said Faubus had planned to fill his post with former Rep. Glenn F. Walther of Little Rock, who was later seated to the PCS by the state

Malone Says Ouster Attempted

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A member of the state Public Service Commission said Wednesday he was asked to resign so State Insurance Commissioner John Norman Harkey could have the post and "crusade against utilities." J.M. Malone Sr. of Lonoke, who has been on the PSC 13 years, said Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller had asked him to resign without delay, but that he told the governor he had no intention of resigning. Malone said Rockefeller wanted to appoint Harkey, who has asked to be relieved of his position next month, to the PCS post. Malone said the insurance commissioner apparently was "impatient to crusade against the utilities." Malone said he had considered resigning during the last days of former Gov. Orval Faubus' administration, but that Rockefeller had urged him to stay and not give Faubus an opportunity to appoint someone. Malone said Faubus had planned to fill his post with former Rep. Mixed Drink Bill Would Yield Funds

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said Wednesday that Arkansas "badly needs" the revenue that a proposed mixed drink bill would generate. Rockefeller, meeting with 13 legislators in Southwest Arkansas, said such a bill would tighten liquor control laws, create needed revenues and make money available "for education and welfare, plus a few other projects." But the governor warned that the mixed drink bill "may or may not be" on the call, explaining that "my mail is running 10 to one against the bill at this time." Rockefeller told the legislators he was "seriously considering" including in the call next month the proposed local sales tax option bill, which he said would take a burden off the state. "Cities' costs are rising like everything else," Rockefeller said. "The bill to me is a reasonable solution to the problem. This would enable cities to help themselves without the state carrying most of the burden." Rockefeller also got in a plug for former State Police Director Lynn A. Davis, who the governor would like to see again head of the department. "There is no school of police work in the state capable of training a police director to the high degree the state wants," Rockefeller said. "A man has to leave the state to attend school to better qualifying himself for the job." Davis, a former FBI agent, was booted by the state Supreme Court from the directorship because he left the state with his federal job, thus not meeting the state residency requirement. Predatory Spiders Spiders, as predators, are of great economic importance to agriculture and forestry. Their numbers in a given area range from an estimated 264,000 per acre in some South American forests to 2,265,000 per acre in an undisturbed meadow in England, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

we care

Who cares
if the blueberries
in our blueberry pie are wild?

Some people may not care... but we care.

Your grandmother's classic blueberry pies were baked with juicy, wild berries.

We think they're the best for pies.

So, we're stubborn.

Only wild berries get into our Jane Parker Blueberry pies.

In fact, we care so much about such things, we've made just one big change in the classic recipe:

We bake only wild berries that are U.S. Grade A!

We're that fussy about all our baking.

No matter what it is, if it's baked by our Jane Parker Bakers, it's baked with quality ingredients.

It's baked with pride and care.

If you want proof that caring this much counts, try a Jane Parker Blueberry Pie this week.

The price? It's as wild as the blueberries.

Chicken Algerian for Weight Watchers

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food Editor

Chicken Algerian is good for people who feel they should watch their weight, yet enjoy fine food. It adds only about 300 calories to the daily count. The chicken combines with diced eggplant, onions and tomato sauce and Tabasco.

Chop green peppers and serve them with the chicken, onion and tomato sauce. Accompany with French bread, crisp green salad, and sherbet or fresh fruit and cheese for dessert.

Tasty dish for weight watchers.

- CHICKEN ALGERIAN
- 2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut into serving pieces
 - 2 teaspoons salt
 - Paprika
 - 1/2 cup diet margarine
 - 2 medium onions, chopped
 - 2 cloves garlic, minced
 - 2 cans (8 ounces) tomato sauce
 - 1 teaspoon dried leaf thyme
 - 1 teaspoon dried leaf basil
 - 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco
 - 2 medium eggplants, peeled and diced

Sprinkle chicken pieces on both sides with salt and paprika. Heat margarine in very large skillet or Dutch oven; add chicken pieces a few at a time and brown on both sides. Return chicken pieces to skillet with onion and garlic. Mix together tomato sauce, thyme, basil and Tabasco; add to skillet. Simmer, covered, 15 minutes. Add eggplant and cook, covered, 10 minutes longer or until chicken is tender. If desired, serve sprinkled with chopped green pepper. Eight servings.

Sizzling Steaks On Stainless Steel

Lets face it, steak is the number one choice of he-men, especially when the weather is brisk. An easy to prepare meal is built around your favorite cut of steak served with a vegetable, hearty salad and coffee. Seasonings make the difference.

Sprinkle prepared Italian Seasoning on squash and bake. Cook the meat directly on individual stainless steel steak platters. Add squash to each sizzle platter after you turn the steaks for last minute reheating and final broiling. Just before the steak is done, spread with soy sauce.

The hallmarks of an old English chop house come from the broiler to the table, and are placed on their own wooden underplatters. Cleaning up is an easy job, because juices and sauces will come right off stainless steel with no pitting or discoloration, no matter what you broil.

2 Fugitives From Prison Captured

TUCKER PRISON FARM, Ark. (AP)—Two inmates who escaped from Tucker Prison Farm Tuesday morning were captured near Sherrill late Tuesday afternoon.

The escapees were identified as Carl D. Graham, 22, who was serving a five-year sentence for forgery from Scott County, and Randy T. Jones, 17, who was serving a five-year term for grand larceny from Crawford County.

Would Provide Each County a Delegate

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A special committee of the Arkansas Legislative Council approved a proposal Monday that would provide each of the state's 75 counties with at least one delegate to any constitutional convention.

The proposal calls for the 1965 apportionment of the legislature to be used as a basis for selecting delegates.

State legislators meet in special session next month and are scheduled to place a proposal for the electorate to decide whether to call a convention on the general election ballot.

The state Constitutional Revision Study Commission has recommended that the delegates be chosen on the basis of 100 single-member districts of about equal population.

Sens. Robert Harvey of Swifton, Morrell Gathright of Pine Bluff and Thomas Penn of Cave City and Reps. John Bethell of Des Arc, Jack Oakes of Augusta and Bill Thompson of Marked Tree make up the special legislative committee.
